Getting to the New Normal in Health Care
By Erica M. Osborne and Kara Witalis
Health care boards can play a pivotal role to ensure their patients, employees and communities receive needed resources to heal, restore and rebuild for a better and healthier future.

Revisiting Strategy Due to COVID-19
By Pamela R. Knecht
Working together, hospital and health system boards and executive teams should examine the pandemic's implications for their organizations to set strategic direction and better serve patients and communities.

Stakeholders Target Health Disparities During a Pandemic
To address gaps in care, hospitals and health systems are analyzing and sharing data and deploying outreach and resources through cross-sector partnerships.

Leading a Coordinated Community Response During COVID-19
By Warren Forgey, Eric Fish and Rick Smith
During and moving beyond the pandemic, hospital and health system boards and executive teams need to keep community stakeholders engaged to forge a better state of health in their communities.

New AHA Report: Financial Losses Deepen for Hospitals and Health Systems
A new AHA report finds that the immense financial strain facing hospitals and health systems due to COVID-19 will continue through at least 2020, with patient volumes expected to remain well below baseline levels.

Updates on COVID-19
Since the COVID-19 outbreak began, the American Hospital Association has worked closely with the CDC and other federal, state and local partners to respond to this challenge and to make sure hospitals and health systems have the most up-to-date information. For the latest information and resources, visit aha.org/COVID19.

© 2020 American Hospital Association
The opinions expressed by authors do not necessarily reflect the policy of the American Hospital Association.

This is an EXTERNAL message coming from a sender OUTSIDE the AHA: Please be CAUTIONARY, particularly with links and attachments.